

The Right Information at your Fingertips.

Tracking your data center's inventory and activity is vital to a well-managed mission critical environment. Using our web-enabled inventory application, N'ventory, means you have real-time data to leverage your planning and decision making. N'ventory puts key information at your fingertips so you can produce reports easily, better manage your lease vs. purchase contracts, and provide your executive team with audit schedules within minutes.

Benefits

- Real time, accurate data leverages planning and decision making and provides better event management; no longer a time-consuming endeavor to get the right information because all the data is in one location.
- Fast and easy report generation from your desktop provides better inventory management and better communication with your executive team. Get your decisions approved faster.
- 24/7 availability. Web access gives you 24x7 availability to your critical data. Know your critical data center systems capacities at all times, from anywhere.
- User friendly interface and searchable data features means easy access to what you have and where it's located—using the Internet tools you're familiar with.
- The data center experts at N'compass provide direction for your data center critical components such as space, power, cooling, infrastructure components, and process and procedure, so your IT team can excel by focusing on their strengths.
